His Fiancee - Charlotte Stevens
Her Father - Fred Gamble
The Detective - Jerry O'Dell

The Story

Father objected strenuously to his daughter marrying Eddie and Eddie and she equally objected to his interference. They planned to elope.

Eddie came prepared for war padded in a baseball outfit, knocked out four men and one dog and motor-cycled off with his fiancee. Halfway to the Minister's house they had to return for her parcels. By that time Father had recovered and with the bow-wow started in pursuit. Four times Eddie nearly killed the traffic cop who aided all he could in their capture. Coming to a sign warning all corners of blasting proceedings Eddie changed its location - Father took the road and narrowly escaped being blown up. The car was wrecked so Father and the bow-wow tracked the couple on foot.

Meanwhile Eddie took his fiancee to the Ministers' Convention. No Ministers to be seen - Eddie went out to find one. Each time he'd turn around a Minister would pass. Up and down the Eddie looked, mistaking several frock-coated gentlemen for ecclesiastics and rushing off with them to their extreme rage. At last the bow-wow relentlessly tracked the elopers and a detective who had been suspiciously eyeing the couple also helped. They spied Eddie and began a merry chase all around the block. Eddie escaped and joined his fiancee - seeing two Ministers they were on the point of being married when Father arrived. The chase started all over again. Once more they escaped and seeing a body of Ministers started to get the knot securely tied when Father butted in once more. Under a huge umbrella they eluded Father's watchful eye, but bow-wow wasn't doing anything in their interests and gave away their whereabouts. Through bathing houses, under boats, beneath stairways they hid and always were confronted with the canine wagging a friendly tail. They came back to the Convention and Eddie hid his Fiancee in a room while he located another Minister. But not yet had the dog done his duty - this time he was not to be worsted and took the seat of Eddie's pants with him. Poor Eddie was in a terrible fix - at every turn he was caught - ladies fainted and at last hiding behind a screen he caught sight of a cleaner carrying a pair of pants - he helped himself. Seeing a Minister he hastily dragged him upstairs but Father arrived and they were no further ahead. Along the street they saw another Minister and ran off with him while Father and the bow-wow came hot foot in pursuit. Up a tunnel they fled into its dark depths and later emerged on the fender of a street car going through the ceremony of being married with Father safely left miles behind.
